Resolution 1325, year 2000

→ The Beijing Declaration, 1996

- Adopted by the UN at the end of the Fourth World Conference on Women
- The resolution adopted to declare a set of principles concerning the equality of men and women

→ UNSCR: 25 years of intense lobbying

→ Four pillars:

1. Participation
  2. Protection
  3. Prevention
  4. Relief and Recovery

The success of UNSCR 1325

- It took 55 years and 4,213 sessions of the Security Council to dedicate one session to women's experience in conflict
  - "To take on the issue of women or gender is not generally seen as a smart career move!"
  - "Nuke man is man talk, even lad talk"

The success of UNSCR 1325

"The first time since the foundation of the United Nations that the Security Council, the peak of the UN structure, the body vested with the responsibility for the world's security, had devoted an entire session to debating women's experience in conflict and post-conflict situations".

Related resolutions

Resolution 1820 (2008): Emphasizing how sexual violence in conflicts can be a war crime or crime against humanity, and the consequences for perpetrators.

Resolution 2493 (2019): förstärkt arbete, IEG ska stärkas, ej stärka SRHR

Why do we (still) need guidelines like UNSCR 1325?

- Only 24,9% of all national parliamentarians were women as of 2020.
- As of 2020, only 21% of government ministers were women
- As of 2019, 6% of mediators are female
- Only 6% of all peace agreements between 1992 and 2019 were signed by women (UN Women).

Why should women be included?

1. Peace deals last approximately 15 years longer.
2. Greater part of civilization represented
  - Need for CSO's and NGO's to amplify voices.
3. Without women we are not using the available competence of society.
